

To whom it may concern,

I am writing in regard to your listed position of Automotive painter at Braun Northwest. Though I am aware I am lacking relevant experience in this field, I still believe I am an excellent fit for this position. I have spent long enough working different jobs, including warehouse work such as Micheals Warehouse and UPS, and different customer service positions including Burgerville and Starbucks. My time in these positions gave me a lot of experience and skills in time and stress management, multitasking and attention to detail, but now I am ready to move in to a long term career. I feel that this position is an excellent opportunity for me to get into a role that will become a career. I have always wanted to learn a desirable trade and I feel that this would be a good first step for me. Given the opportunity, I would love to show what I can do.
